LYTTON: Lytton.

SUPREME DALEK: (OVER RADIO) This is the Supreme Dalek. The self-destruct chamber has been invaded. The hostiles must be exterminated.

LYTTON: There isn't time. Abandon the space station.

SUPREME DALEK: You should have anticipated this.

LYTTON: The original plan was to snatch Davros and leave, not dance to his every whim.

SUPREME DALEK: Nothing must endanger Davros. The hostiles must be destroyed. The Daleks must be obeyed.

(LYTTON, AS RADIO GOES DEAD. THE LOOK ON HIS FACE REGISTERS THE CONTEMPT HE HAS FOR THE DALEKS)

She rounds the corner, but all we see is the backdrop of Tower Bridge.

The Tardis has gone.

She frantically looks around.

She then peers over flood wall down at the river.

The tide is out.

Tegan's POV:

A MAN wearing waders, with earphones, clamped to his head, metal detector in hand, scavenges the river bed for buried treasure.

TEGAN turns and back-tracks along the path.

As she turns into Wapping Pierhead proper, she sees the POLICEMEN and starts towards them.

As she does, she notices that the SECOND POLICEMAN is carrying a gun.

TEGAN pauses. She then turns and starts to descend the metal steps of Ramsgate Cut towards the METAL DETECTOR MAN.

With the METAL DETECTOR MAN, in the foreground of the shot, we see TEGAN descending the steps.

She is shouting and waving her arms, but he can't hear her, the high pitched hum of the metal detector blocking all other sound out.

The TWO POLICEMEN reach the top of the steps and pause and the SECOND POLICEMAN levels his gun at TEGAN.

Suddenly the SECOND POLICEMAN swings his gun round and sights it on the METAL DETECTOR MAN, who is still oblivious as to what is happening.

The sound of the metal detector fades.

The SECOND POLICEMAN squeezes the trigger and we hear the dull thud of the silenced gun.

The METAL DETECTOR MAN falls dead in the silt of the river bed.
